

This periodic table is color coded to indicate humanity's best guess as to the nuclear origin of all known elements. The simplest elements, hydrogen and helium, are far and away the most abundant.

